Physical, Speech and Occupational Therapy for Children

Jennifer Sagett, SLP

In 1999 Jennifer Sagett graduated from the University of Illinois with a bachelors degree in Speech and Hearing Sciences. She continued on to receive a masters degree in 2001 from Northwestern University in Speech-Language Pathology. She had been practicing as a Speech Pathologist for the past 6 years in a variety of settings including clinics, schools, outpatient rehab and the home environment.

Jennifer has received special training in voice and fluency. She specializes in pediatrics and has worked extensively with nonverbal children and children with autism. She also has training in sign communication and has taught classes in baby sign.

"I feel that what I do helps to reduce frustration within families. When a child has difficulty communicating it affects everyone in their environment. Addressing those issues can open many doors for a child and his/her family. It makes me smile every time I watch a child say a first word!" – Jennifer Sagett, SLP
